Profile

Stefan Simon is since 2005 Director of the Rathgen Research Laboratory with the National Museums Berlin, Germany.

The German American heritage scientist earned his Ph.D. in Chemistry from the Ludwig Maximilian University, Munich. Simon has broad experience in trans-disciplinary research and international institutional management. He served as a Council Member and Vice President of ICCROM, the International Centre for the Study of the Preservation and Restoration of Cultural Property and as President of the International Council on Monuments and Sites' (ICOMOS) Scientific Committee for Stone (ISCS).

As Inaugural Director of Yale's Institute for the Preservation of Cultural Heritage and Director of Yale's Global Cultural Heritage Initiatives (2014-2019), Stefan Simon prioritized the advancement of sustainable conservation strategies triggered by the global climate crisis and contributed to fundraising. He is a leading voice in the international "Culture in Crisis" debate and acting on public stage as advocate against illicit traffic of cultural property. Within the Prussian Cultural Heritage Foundation, he established the Taskforce Risk Management in 2020 and coordinates the emergency preparedness efforts of the Foundation.

Stefan Simon received the Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program award of a Distinguished Research Chair in Arts and Social Sciences to Canada for the 2024-2025 academic year at Carleton University, Ottawa, ON, from the U.S. Department of State and the Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board. An ICOM Member since 1996, he switched his primary affiliation from IC-CC to IC: Security in 2022. In December 2025, Simon was elected to the Board of ICOM Germany.

Simon is a corresponding member of the German Archaeological Institute and been recognized with Honorary Professorships at X'ian Jiaotong University, China, and the Technical University Berlin. He has co-authored and published more than 150 articles on the preservation of cultural heritage. Trilingual in German, English and Polish, he is also fluent in French, with a working knowledge in Arabic.
